Films

• All God’s Children. Producers: Dr. Dee Mosbacher, Frances Reid and Dr. Sylvia Rhue, 1996.
  o Prominent religious, intellectual and political leaders, family members and activists speak out about the role of the church and the importance of commitment to equal rights and social justice for all people, including lesbians and gay men.
• Among Good Christian Peoples. Producers: Catherine Gund and Jacqueline Woodson, Frameline Video, 1980.
  o The story of an African-American lesbian (also one of the filmmakers) raised as a Jehovah's Witness. Unable to abandon either her religious beliefs or her current lifestyle, she ultimately finds a way to practice her faith within a supportive and nurturing environment.
  o Interviews featuring black women talking candidly about their sexual and racial identities are interwoven with a dramatized love story, set in the 1920s, in which a romance develops between a gorgeous jazz singer and her stylish butch lover.
  - The film is an imaginary biopic, centering on the efforts of a group of young lesbians of color to devise a fitting tribute to one of this century's great visionaries.
  - An experimental documentary chronicling the March 1995 groundbreaking conference on lesbian and gay sexualities in the African diaspora, featuring scholars, activists and cultural workers such as Essex Hemphill, Kobena Mercer, Barbara Smith, Urvashi Vaid and Jacqui Alexander.
  - A powerful look at the ideas and feelings of successful, black gay men on such issues as sexuality, masculinity and their perception of and their role within the black community.
  - This video is about Audre Lorde's broad social vision and the translation of that vision into a historic transnational conference.
  - This documentary captures the spirit and intellect of a man who surmounted many barriers to become a celebrated writer. It discusses Baldwin's homosexuality, his self-imposed exile in France and Turkey, and his return to the United States to participate in the civil rights movement.
- He Left Me His Strength. DCTV, 1989.
  - Centering on the personal story of Mildred Pearson, a black adult female whose gay son died from AIDS, this video addresses AIDS, homosexuality and the black church.
  - Film biography providing a fitting memorial to Marlon Riggs, the gifted, gay, black filmmaker who died from AIDS in 1994. It traces his development from a precocious childhood in the close-knit African-American community of Fort Worth, Texas, through his political awakening at Harvard, to his final years as a courageous advocate for stigmatized people.
- Living With Pride: Ruth Ellis @ 100. Yvonne Welbon, 1999.
  - Documentary with vivid narrative recreations about the life and times of Ruth Ellis, born July 23, 1899, and the oldest "out" African-American lesbian at the time of filming.
  - Up-front and in-your-face interviews with black gays and lesbians provide an uncompromising look at homophobia, racism, alienation and empowerment for GLBT African Americans.
- The acclaimed account of black gay life by Emmy Award-winning director Marlon Riggs, which uses poetry, personal testimony, rap and performance to describe the homophobia and racism that confront black gay men.

  - Director Cheryl Dunye casts herself as the beleaguered protagonist in this film about a black lesbian struggling to make a documentary about Fae Richards, an alluring and mysterious 1930s black film actress.
