SUPPORTING THE CAUSE:

Survivor Voices is available for cancer survivors to sing and share their messages of survival at many venues in the East Central Indiana community.

As well as providing vocal and instrumental music and other expression, Survivor Voices is working with the IU Health Ball Memorial Hospital Cancer Center to collect and share information in their concert venues about healthy lifestyles, screening and diagnosis. Community screening opportunities—particularly for those who cannot afford more in-depth care—need to be shared with the group so that the information can be passed along.

MISSION:

Through vocal and instrumental music and other expression, Survivor Voices brings together individuals who have or have had cancer to celebrate their survivorship, strength and hope and to offer inspiration to other survivors, their caregivers and families, and to us all.

Joe Songer, M.D.
Retired Oncologist and a Melanoma Survivor

“No matter what you’ve been through, ‘life after treatment’ is something people need to get back to. Singing in a group like this, I believe, can help people feel they can live again. The group and the music offer encouragement to those who sing and put them in touch with others who are all part of the ‘cancer club’ that no one wanted to join. It is fun for anyone who can carry a tune and enjoys singing. After all, there is nothing like music to bring people together.”

Kay Stickles
Retired Professor of Early Childhood Education and an Ovarian Cancer Survivor

“I believe our community needs to know that cancer survivors lead vibrant full lives and many don’t hide the fact that they have fought the disease. It is a privilege to be in Survivor Voices and to share the positive nature of recovery and survivorship. Meeting people with all the backgrounds that we have and supporting and encouraging each other is wonderful. We have a message of hope and encouragement for others going through cancer and the caregivers who support them.”

Autumn Retz
Church music performer and a Cervical and Uterine Cancer Survivor

“Survivor Voices provides encouragement, support and love from others helping you realize you don’t go through any of this alone. A group like this never forgets what you have been through. The opportunity to sing with other survivors helps me know we are touching people and blessing them in their struggles.”
